It is designed as a blended learning format or flipped classroom and enables participants to apply sound teaching and learning principles. This includes online preparation, presentations by participants, group discussions and interactive learning activities. It is delivered by accredited TOTR interprofessional facilitators. Participants may choose to attend TOTR individual sessions or the full day.

Learning objectives

After attending this program, the learner will be able to:

- Create a learning plan that supports achievement of specific outcomes for learners in the clinical setting
- Demonstrate 'skills teaching' using the four-step approach
- Understand the importance of using active learning strategies when teaching small and large groups
- Explore both formal and informal opportunities to support interprofessional learning in the workplace
