Engaging in Quality Improvement using Research Methods (ENQuIRE)

About the unit:

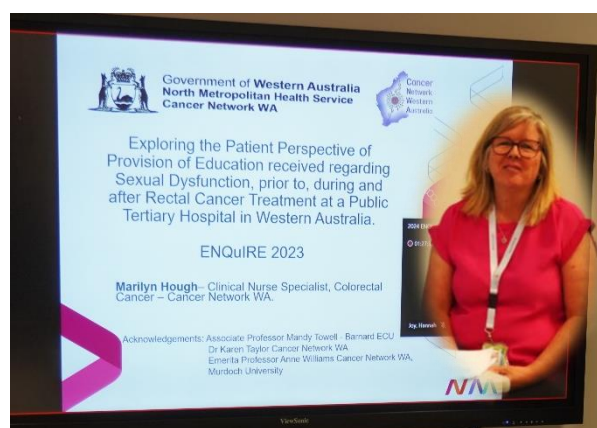

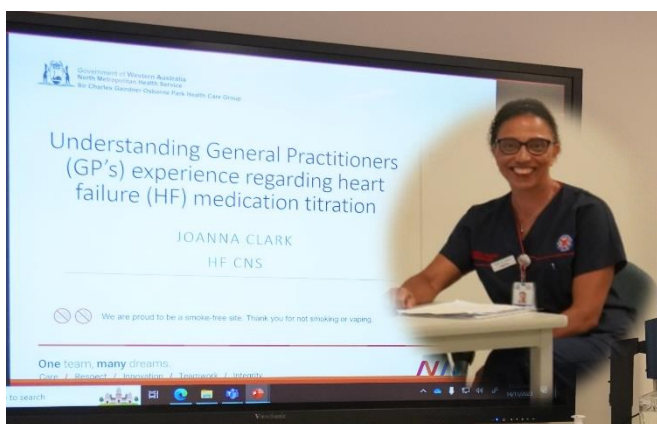

EnQuIRE introduces clinicians to clinical research methodology, evidence-based practice and quality improvement (QI). The interprofessional learning environment allows participants to develop analytical and critical thinking skills that have direct relevance to clinical practice in health care settings. Participants will lead their own QI project using research informed methodology, displaying an ability to critically evaluate health care. In early 2024 the program content and structure will be reviewed with the intent of facilitating a semester 2 start date.

Further information including who can apply, fee structure, and application process will be released to support a July 2024 commencement date.
